

Livingston HealthCare announces that orthopedic surgeon Michelle Donaldson, MD has been appointed by the International Society of Arthroscopy, Knee Surgery, and Orthopedic Sports Medicine to the ISAKOS Scientific Committee for the 2011-2015 term.

In 2003, Donaldson received an award from ISAKOS for her research on the link between shoulder instability and the development of shoulder arthritis. Donaldson is an internationally recognized orthopedic surgeon who is fellowship trained in the advanced treatment of arthritis and sporting injuries of the shoulder, elbow, hip, knee and ankle. She completed her orthopedic residency at Johns Hopkins and a sports medicine fellowship at the Steadman Hawkins Clinic in Vail, Colorado. She is a United States Ski and Snowboard Team Physician and is Board Certified in Orthopedic Surgery and Sports Medicine.

Donaldson