

Louisville Orthopaedic Clinic

Expanding to Indiana

LOC Expansion:

The physicians and staff of the Louisville Orthopaedic Clinic are excited to announce the expansion of our orthopedic specialty coverage into southern Indiana. This will be the first true expansion of our practice since Drs. Eggers and McAllister founded the LOC 40 years ago in 1974!

As of January 2016 LOC physicians will begin dedicating a portion of their clinic time to seeing patients at a satellite location in New Albany, IN. in the Northgate Medical Center.

Reasons for Our Expansion:

The practice of medicine has changed dramatically over the last decade. Government regulations, increased costs, and declining reimbursements have caused many private medical practices to sell their practices, becoming owned and controlled by large hospital corporations. Controlling costs and complying with new restrictions has become the priority for all parties, inadvertently causing the patient experience and quality of care to suffer. We strongly believe that remaining independent will allow us to maintain some control, further allowing us to deliver the best and most personal individual care to meet our patient's needs. As a part of our strategy to remain independent, we believe that the expansion of our footprint and our referral base into southern Indiana will help secure our long term future as an independent provider of the highest quality specialty orthopedic care.

Indiana Hospital Facility: The Physicians Medical Center (PMC)

The hospital out of which we will be basing our Indiana presence will be the Physicians Medical Center (PMC). PMC is a new 10 year old physician owned modern, state of the art boutique specialty hospital that offers full service overnight inpatient care for patients undergoing major surgical procedures such as joint replacement and spine surgery. PMC also offers efficient outpatient surgical services for many foot and ankle and arthroscopic knee and shoulder operations where overnight stay is unnecessary. Its mission is to deliver timely, personal, quality, "best in practice" care. PMC is nestled in the northwest corner of I-265 and Grant Line Road and tucked just southwest of the Indiana University Southeast campus (see map).

Indiana Clinical Medical Office: Our satellite location will provide a more convenient option to the residents of southern Indiana. Patients will be seen for orthopedic problems covered by the subspecialty care for which the Louisville Orthopaedic Clinic has become so well known.
