Louisville Orthopaedic Clinic Opens Satellite Office in Southern Indiana

December 17, 2015 - The providers and staff of Louisville Orthopaedic Clinic are excited to announce the expansion of our orthopedic specialty coverage into Southern Indiana. This will be the first true expansion of our practice since Drs. Eggers and McAllister founded Louisville Orthopaedic Clinic 40 years ago in 1974. As of January 4, 2015 LOC's expansion into Indiana will be official.

The practice of medicine has changed dramatically over the last decade. Government regulations, increased costs, and declining reimbursements have caused many private medical practices to sell their practices, becoming owned and controlled by large hospital corporations. Controlling costs and complying with new restrictions has become the priority for all parties, inadvertently causing the patient experience and quality of care to suffer. We strongly believe that remaining independent will allow us to maintain some control, further allowing us to deliver the best and most personal individual care to meet our patient's needs. As a part of our strategy to remain independent, we believe that the expansion of our footprint and our referral base into southern Indiana will help secure our long term future as an independent provider of the highest quality specialty orthopaedic care.

Louisville Orthopaedic Clinic has created an orthopedic environment, which enables us to treat all types of orthopedic problems and musculoskeletal diseases. We strive to offer the latest technological advances in orthopedic care. All of our surgeons are board certified in orthopedic surgery and have completed specialized training. This specialized training includes custom total joint replacement; arthroscopic procedures of the knee, shoulder and ankle; surgery of the spine; foot and ankle disorders, fracture management, and sports medicine.

After much consideration such as ease of access, convenience, functionality and availability, we have chosen a clinic space at 3605 Northgate Court, Suite, 207 New Albany, IN 47150. Surgeries will be performed out of the state of the art, boutique specialty hospital, Physicians Medical Center (PMC) at 4023 Reas Ln, New Albany, IN 47150. For appointments please call (812) 920-0408.

We are truly excited to bring the expertise of Louisville Orthopaedic Clinic physicians to the residents of southern Indiana and surrounding areas.
